Many pieces make up the big picture!

Success in HIV Care and Treatment can be measured in countless ways. At BCAP, we measure a success each time we meet with a person who is living with HIV and learn that they are seeing their doctor on a regular basis and that they have access to and are taking medications to stop the replication of the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV. The absolute test is when a person's lab results show an HIV undetectable viral load.

A person living with HIV who has an undetectable viral load will most likely experience improved health and they are also less likely to transmit the virus to others. Staying engaged in HIV care accomplishes both care and prevention goals that we call "Treatment as Prevention." When we look at community public health, the more we can help a person reach an undetectable viral load, the more we can help to create an undetectable community viral load.

There are multiple social determinants of health that make reaching an undetectable viral load challenging for people living with HIV. Poverty, homelessness, mental illness, substance use, lack of information, stigma, fear, and politics can make reaching an undetectable viral load difficult.

BCAP staff focuses on meeting each individual where they are at and starting from there. BCAP believes every person deserves the chance to live, work, and raise their families in good health and with dignity. Individuals with access to quality health care and stability can thrive, and the entire community experiences health and wellness.

We partner with individuals, businesses and organizations to do this work. We are all pieces in the bigger picture of community health, and when we put the pieces together, we have the tools necessary to build a healthier community.

BCAP Audited Financials

Federal Tax Id: 74-2442032

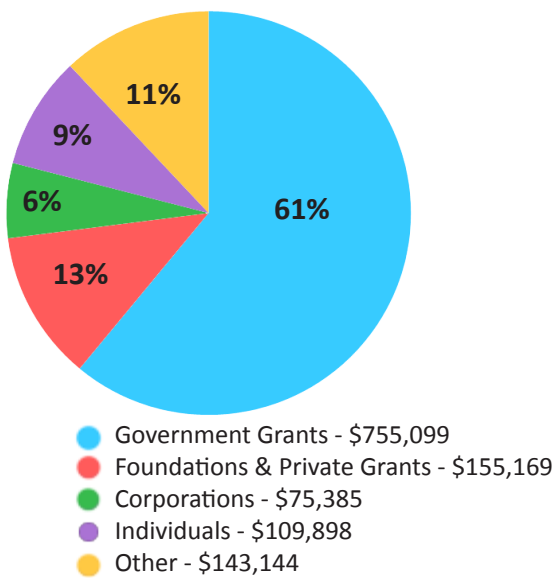

Founded December 24, 1985

Boulder County AIDS Project focuses resources on providing life-sustaining HIV care and prevention services. This includes providing HIV education and information available to all residents of Boulder, Broomfield, Gilpin, and Clear Creek Counties. In 2017, BCAP devoted 81% of its resources to direct HIV services and programs. We met or exceeded our service goals while reducing our operating costs.

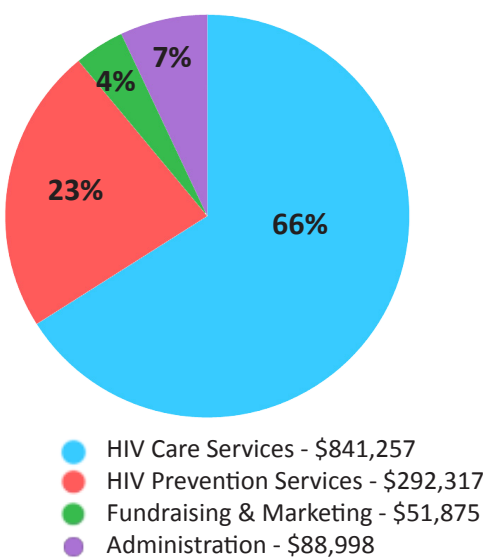

BCAP maintains two offices located in City of Boulder and City of Longmont in order to reach residents across the Agency’s service area with outreach, home visits, and collaboration with community partners. BCAP remains committed to housing persons living with HIV in the community in which they receive services and at Eaton House, the only permanent supportive housing available for persons living with HIV in the region. BCAP continues to partner with Boulder County Public Health Works Program providing harm reduction support to people who inject as a strategy to reduce the incidence of HIV and HCV as our nation experiences unprecedented levels of opiate addiction.

BCAP’s primary mission is to provide services to persons living with HIV or at increased risk of acquiring HIV. BCAP is reliant upon critical annual financial support of the Ryan White HIV/AIDS Program enacted through the Ryan White CARE Act of 1990. Ryan White funding is BCAP’s largest primary source of government revenue. BCAP also receives funding from local government, businesses, private foundations, faith-based organizations, and individuals. Additionally, in 2017, BCAP received $236,452 in pro bono and in-kind support from professionals, individuals, and faith-based organizations.

BCAP connects all of the essential pieces

"Case management allows clients to become agents in their care and educated about their needs. I am proud to claim the majority of my clients have been successful and have an undetectable viral load. My main goal is that my clients access and engage in HIV medical care. We need to gain trust in order to better understand what our clients needs are, and to assist them in any manner possible. That means referring to other resources, brainstorming for alternatives so that clients feel empowered not only with their medical care but with other aspects of their lives."

Mildred Gutierrez-Campos, Bilingual Medical Case Manager

"I moved to Boulder in 2013 from New York City. I was concerned about many issues surrounding my living in Boulder with HIV. A friend of mine said, "Go to BCAP!" I walked into BCAP and realized that I was in a special place. My case worker, Mildred Gutierrez-Campos, handles my many concerns, including my medical insurance, doctor, dental, therapy, lawyer, job search, bus fare, the food bank, acupuncture, massage and the Speakers Bureau which has given me the opportunity to talk about living with HIV and AIDS to students in high school and college, from a positive perspective. BCAP is a vital part of my life and all the staff there are very dear to me."

Ricardo Nanton, BCAP Client

Working together is the right fit

"Working with educators, like Karen, who bring in experts from different community organizations like BCAP, Boulder Valley Women's Health Center's Teen Clinic, and Out Boulder into middle school and high school classrooms, students are receiving an all-encompassing and comprehensive sexual education curriculum. In doing this, students are provided with the tools and encouragement to make healthier choices in their lifetime and become allies and resources to their peers."

Carli Dean, Bilingual Community Outreach Coordinator

"As a Health and Wellness teacher in Boulder Valley School District, I depend on Boulder County AIDS Project to come in twice a year to teach high school students about HIV and AIDS. Health education standards include content to raise awareness about local community resources so that students are able to access safe and medically accurate health care and prevention services, at little or no cost. All of the people I have worked with at BCAP are professional and know how to speak to and relate to teens when teaching about sexual health."

Karen Lenser, Teacher

BCAP Volunteers help complete the puzzle

"From the moment a person makes the choice to get involved with BCAP, they begin the process of becoming a well-educated HIV advocate among the people they encounter in their private circles and in the larger community. Each year, approximately 50 individuals seek to get involved with BCAP's mission. Seeing people deliberately choosing to engage in this work, sends the encouraging message to those served by BCAP that they are worthy of the community's time, resources, and care. BCAP's culture promotes a safe learning experience where all people are welcomed and supported without judgment. Whether someone chooses to give an hour of their time, or like Frank Kogen, fills various roles, all BCAP volunteers directly improve the health of people living in our local community."

Sarah Annecone, BCAP Volunteer Coordinator

"When I first got involved with BCAP as a volunteer, I said I was going to try every single job here! My best weeks are when BCAP finds something for me to do every single day of the week. From the garden to the food bank, we work hard to improve the well-being of those that we serve. We work hard to maintain our garden, where we grow produce for our food pantries. When I work in the food pantry, I try to point out healthier choices for our clients who might not have a great repertoire of recipes, so that they can work out ways to include healthier items in their diets."

Frank Kogen, BCAP Volunteer

In 2017, BCAP had 50+ volunteer roles, serving in the following positions as:

Administration Department Volunteer • Atlas Volunteer • BCAP Event Volunteer • Board of Directors Member • Committee Member • Food Pantry Volunteer • Community Outreach Volunteer • Database Volunteer • Development Department Volunteer • Food Drive Volunteer • Garden Volunteer • Front Desk Volunteer • Fundraising Event Volunteer • Maintenance Volunteer • Gift Wrap Volunteer • HCV Test Counselor • HIV Test Counselor • HIV 101 Speakers Bureau Presenter • Interfaith AIDS Coalition Member • Prevention Department Volunteer • Pro Bono Service Volunteer

BCAP Donors help to see the bigger picture

I believe that supporters of BCAP are able to truly impact the health of our community through financial gifts. BCAP is serving an incredibly vulnerable and stigmatized population that deserves the exemplary care and support that BCAP provides. Donors are able to ensure that this population gets the care that they deserve.

Nia Wassink, Development Consultant

"When my best friends contracted HIV in the 1980's, there were no questions about giving or not giving. Friends and strangers stepped up to do what it took to ease the suffering and deaths of so many and BCAP was formed. Fortunately, there is less death now but suffering still takes many forms; the female drug addict who is shunned by others, the transgender person who just got diagnosed, the professional who fears it might compromise his career, the homeless, the mentally challenged, young people who think it can't happen to them but are at risk because of their internalized self-disregard - all of them can walk through BCAP doors without shame. Compassion and care no matter what... that is why I give. How could I not?"

Daphne Chellos, BCAP Donor
